"The name of this wine could be a long-form way to spell "Meursault." It does an impressive imitation of that Burgundian village's fabled rich chardonnay style. Not that imitation, however flattering, was necessarily the aim at this excellent Okanagan winery. Full-bodied and toasty, the wine displays impressive balance, with layered flavours including pineapple, apple, vanilla, candied citrus and buttered popcorn."

"This is a bit more of everything compared with the regular Chardonnay. The wine was aged in French oak and went through malolactic fermentation. The wine has a rich buttery texture, with aromas of fig and caramel and flavours of orange and baked apple. The oak's toastiness gives a smoky note on the finish."
