"Here is a splendid example of this variety, intensely spicy, with the characteristic scents and flavors of rose petals, lychee fruit and baby powder. It shows tremendous depth and precision, and could be cellared through 2020."

"Tangy, floral, fresh. From Township 7's Naramata Estate Vineyard this tangy Gewurztraminer offers citrus oil, honey, yellow apples, pears, spice and orange blossom notes. The palate is very fresh, the acidity bright. It has a slightly oily or soapy texture balanced with a mouthwatering finish."

"The wine begins with aromas of ginger, orange peel and lychee. It presents intensely on the palate, with flavours of citrus. The finish is dry, punctuated emphatically with spice."

"A study in balance, this is dry gewurztraminer as it shines best, seductively rich and simultaneously spicy and vibrant. Virtually dry (tilting in the direction of off-dry but not past the tipping point) and medium-bodied, it shows textbook varietal characters of lychee, rose petal and spicy ginger along with apricot and apple. The physical sensation is both luscious and almost spritzly. Suitable for aromatically spicy Asian fare as well as many cheeses."

"The wine begins with an alluring aroma of sage and spice, leading to elegant and concentrated flavours of lime and grapefruit. The touch of residual sugar lifts the fruit and fills out the texture while the fresh acidity balances the wine. The finish is dry and refreshing and the spice lingers ever so long."

"Although this wine is described as slightly off dry by the winery, for most palates it would be perfectly dry, though just slightly rounded off to eliminate any suggestion of sourness. Lychee, pineapple and grapefruit flavors abound, underscored with refreshing minerality. That vivid acidity carries through a resonant, lively finish."
